Sandstone Finishes

Natural/Unpolished Finish: The stone retains its natural texture and appearance, providing a rustic and organic look. It is often used for garden pathways, patios, and landscaping.

Honed Finish: The surface is smooth and matte, achieved by polishing the stone to remove surface imperfections without a high gloss. Suitable for indoor flooring and wall cladding.

Tumbled Finish: The stone is polished lightly and then tumbled to give a weathered, antique appearance with rounded edges. Ideal for outdoor applications like walkways and patios.

Bush-Hammered Finish: A textured surface created by hammering the stone with a specialized tool, giving a rough, slip-resistant surface, often used for paving.

Brushed Finish: The surface is brushed to create a soft, textured feel, providing a non-slip surface suitable for outdoor stairs and walkways.

Sandblasted Finish: The stone is blasted with sand to produce a textured, matte surface, enhancing slip resistance and visual interest.

Flamed Finish: A highly durable, slip-resistant, and textured surface created by applying an intense, high-temperature flame to the stone.
